FROM SEA TO SEA

To Europe, the shortest route from Chicago is via the St. Lawrence Seaway. All year ports are Halifax and Saint John. For the Orient, Australia and New Zealand, Vancouver and Victoria are the all-year ports.

CANADA A FERTILE INVESTMENT FIELD
 Population 10,500,000 Area 3,700,000 square miles
 Canada has vast reservoirs of undeveloped natural resources, with ample power available for their development. Canada's national wealth is more than thirty billion dollars. Canada occupies fifth place among exporting nations; leads the world in export of wheat, newsprint, nickel and asbestos; stands second among users of water power, with only 16 per cent of available power resources developed.

AN IDEAL VACATION LAND
 Canada offers unequalled attractions for the vacation seeker. Big game abounds in her forests, game fish in her lakes and streams. Vast National Parks cover an area of 13,000 square miles.

FROM SEA TO SEA

Few investments bring such returns as those made for the recuperation of mind and body and spirit. Canada offers the widest range for a vacation and invites the people of other nations to share her great God-given heritage of natural scenic beauty and opportunities for relaxation in the 12,000 square miles which constitute her National Parks. Whether by travel on Canada's railways, where comfort, service and courtesy are the watchwords; on her highways, where the camaraderie of the road always exists; by pack-trail or canoe, access may be obtained by the visitor to fields of recreation, fields for business and commercial study and research, and fields for sound investment.

Mineral Resources

In the mineral field, Canada has long been the world's leading producer of nickel and asbestos. She holds second place among the gold-producing countries of the world and is well to the forefront in the production of lead, zinc, copper and silver. Canada has large reserves of coal, building stones, salt, gypsum, bituminous sands, oil and gas, and has recently become an important source of radium-bearing ores.

Agriculture

Canada's basic industry, agriculture, has brought the Dominion to the fore in past years. Her grains, livestock and other agricultural products hold their own against the best the world produces. For a quarter of a century, Canadian livestock breeders have brought back championships from the International Exhibition at Chicago. In wheat and other grains, Canada has established world records which will be difficult to surpass. Eighteen times out of a possible twenty-two, Canadian wheat has carried off the world's championship. Last year, in addition to the world's hard red wheat championship, Canada captured 80 of the 85 awards, held the first 65 places on the award list, and took the championship and 27 places in the flax classes.

Fisheries

Canada's fisheries make an important contribution to the economic wealth of the Dominion. The catches include more than 60 varieties of food fish and shell fish. They come from the sea fisheries resources of great extent on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and from prolific inland areas which contain more than half the fresh waters of the globe. The Canadian fisheries industry offers a fruitful field for the inventor of new methods of processing, and the Dominion of Canada can supply fish suited to every palate and every need.

Lumbering

The lumbering industry of the Dominion of Canada ranks second only to agriculture among the primary industries in its contribution to national production. With a total forested area of more than 1,153,000 square miles, of which about 32 per cent carries merchantable timber and 35 per cent new growth, the Dominion is in a splendid position to develop her lumbering industry further. Of the 160 species of plant life reaching tree size, 31 species are coniferous, the wood of which forms 80 per cent of the standing timber and 95 per cent of the sawn lumber. The annual value of forest products is approximately $207,000,000.

Canada possesses an abundance and variety of natural resources; with plenteous water-power for their development; with ample transportation facilities, with sane labour laws and a sound banking system. Factory sites are at present available at strategic points, and taxation is comparatively low.

Canada invites you to refresh yourself and renew your energies in her playgrounds, to study for yourself the opportunities for investment or establishment which she offers, and to share the hospitality which she always extends to the stranger within her gates. Your entry will be made easy, and your welcome will be as wide as her boundaries.
